

Delfino Madden attorneys handle a range of intellectual property law matters and technology transactions including the purchase, licensing, implementation, and sale of intellectual property and technology goods and services. We regularly assist with drafting, reviewing, and negotiating agreements for software, mobile application and web development, software implementation and integration, professional information technology consulting services, intellectual property assignments, and licenses. This involves agreements in varying forms such as services agreements, license agreements, non-disclosure agreements. We also provide counsel on trade secrets, publicity rights and waivers, trademark law, fair use and copyright law, perform trademark clearance searches, and prosecute copyright and trademark applications, including maintenance filings.
